Course Overview

What do the great teams do that the others fail to do? How do team leaders build their teams to be collaborative, self-reliant, motivated and productive? Flying geese intuitively know the answer. As each bird flaps its wings, it creates uplift for the following birds. By flying in V-formation the whole flock adds over 70 percent to the flying range than if each bird flew alone.

This highly-interactive training course will help demonstrate how teams can be led to achieve much more than either the team leader or the team members dreamt possible – the additional human uplift. The course will help team leaders learn skills and techniques that enable them to feel more in control of their team while at the same time applying techniques that help team members release their talents, energy and potential.

The course will examine the latest ways to motivate and manage teams for improved productivity and morale and help turn average team leaders into one's that others in the organisation will aspire to join. There will be a focus on experiential team development sessions - with accompanying feedback - allowing participants to examine the impact of their behaviour on cross-team performance.
